Chance to Save Coal.

City Auditor Crook, in looking over his books, finds that it has cost $174 to keep the main city building in fuel for the past winter, while it has taken $201 worth to heat the patrol house and jail. There is considerable talk occasioned by the imperfection of the heating plant as it now is. When the city building was put up it was considered a piece of economy to heat the patrol house and the jail with stoves, so as to get along with a little cheaper heat in the main building. It is claimed that with but very little more fuel than is now used during the winter in the main building, all three of the buildings could be heated by merely connecting with the plant in the main building. It might cost a little something to put the plant in such a shape that it would do all the heating, but the little doubt that it will be economy in the long run to have one heating apparatus for all three buildings, and such a move is likely to be made before next winter sets in.

NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Police Unearth a Nest of Housebreakers and Probable Counterfeiters.

RICH BOOTY FOUND IN A SMALL CAVERN

Den Near Lake Manawa Raided and the Occupants Landed in Jail—Some of the Recent Exploits of the Gang.

A gang of housebreakers and counterfeiters is not a thing that turns up every day, but that is about the size of the gang that was turned up yesterday morning by Officers Murphy and Wier. Last Tuesday the house occupied by Ben Marks as a residence in the summer time at Manawa was broken into. It was unoccupied and nothing was known of the affair until a day or two later, when it was found that the thieves had pried open a window with a crow bar and had stolen a lot of valuable goods. The house was then searched and the thieves had no difficulty in making their selection of things they wanted. In making an inventory Mr. Marks found that knives, forks, blankets, mattresses, comforts and the like were missing to the value of $100.

Three men had been seen about the place and they were at once suspected of being the guilty parties. Two of them are brothers named Rachwitz and the other's name is Ben Marks. They have been in several crimes and bear the reputation of being hard citizens and desperate men generally. Marks went to Justice Vint's office and swore out a search warrant and Murphy and Wier made the search. The three men have been living in a cave near the Schuetzen Verein shooting park on the east shore of the lake for some time past. The officers went to this cave and found one of the Rachwitz boys there. They proceeded to search the place and in a few minutes they had found about a wagon load of the stolen property. The cave was only about eight feet by twelve in size, but it was well filled with plunder. Rachwitz and the stuff that accompanied the description furnished by Marks were taken up and the latter was stored in Justice Vint's office, while the former was handcuffed and given over to the custody of the county jailer.

While looking over the stuff in the cave some metal was found that had evidently been intended to be used in the manufacture of counterfeit money. No tools were found, but another search is to be made, when the officers may be more successful. The mere presence of the bogus metal in the cave proves nothing, but it seems that a night or two ago Mrs. Zimmerman, whose husband keeps a saloon and restaurant at Manawa, had some counterfeit dollars passed off on her by these very men. They visited her place in a rather hilarious mood, and proceeded to imbibe something that had a tendency to make them still more hilarious. They paid for the stuff in the bogus coin, and Mrs. Zimmerman did not discover her mistake until she was considerably out of pocket.

It has been thought for a long time that a counterfeiting plant has been in operation in this vicinity, but the most thorough search by the officers on both sides of the river has been unable to throw any light upon its exact whereabouts. It is the opinion of the officers that the clue just hit upon, if followed up, will result in the capture of the gang and the tools with which they have been working.

SPLIT THE TICKETS.

Populists Nominate Snyder and Hunt for School Board Candidates.

One election and five political conventions is the record for the past six days. What is believed to be the last convention before tomorrow's election took place last evening at the court house under the auspices of the populists. About the usual handful were there. The actions of the republican and democratic conventions were discussed at considerable length, the usual amount of complaining being done by the speakers. Then the question arose, who should be nominated by the populists? Bert Evans, Dr. Snyder and J. P. Hunt were mentioned, but John Ahles protested against nominating any of the candidates that had been put up by either of the other conventions, for if the candidates should fail to be elected it would have a tendency to brand the populist endorsement as a hoodoo. He was outvoted, however, and M. Snyder of the republican ticket and J. P. Hunt of the so-called citizens' nonpartisan ticket were selected as candidates.

LOSERS OF PEOPLE CAN.

FREE TRIAL TREATMENTS FOR ALL.

EVERYBODY TO KNOW THE MERITS OF THEIR

Admirable Specialty System—The Community Evidently Impressed With the Liberty and Fairness of the Offer.

The principle that lies at the bottom of the Copeland & Shepard medical system, the theory of shorter time and lighter fees for the cure of chronic maladies, is just this—that, modern science having greatly reduced the actual cost of proper medical treatment, it is just as dishonest to maintain the former high fees as it is to keep up the famine price of bread in a time of plenty.

A great difficulty with many sufferers lies in their decision. Lack of means, joined to lack of information as to what course to pursue, as to what specialist to consult and trust, results too often in a listless postponement of all treatment whatever. To meet this too frequent condition of pitiful indecision and to solve a conundrum that distresses too many invalids, Drs. Copeland and Shepard have announced the plan of a trial treatment free to all applicants on their first visit. Instead of leaving the patient either to perish "for want of a good doctor" or to experiment helplessly and blindly at his own expense, it enables him, before paying out a dollar, to know just what he is paying for. It is a mere matter of honesty toward the patient and, while the plan is awakening considerable public interest because apparently new, unique and exceptional in medical practice, it is really that to be pursued by every specialist who has the welfare of his patients honestly and truly at heart.

AS TO FEES.

The fees charged by many specialists range from $5 to $10 a week, and, according to opportunity. Regular physicians have regular rates. With Drs. Copeland and Shepard the fee is a trifling sum a month, uniform, and that includes all medicines.

RHEUMATISM AND CATARRH.

Cured at Home by the System of Mail Treatment.

James Flexman, an old resident of Hoopston, Ill., writes thus of the expert treatment, by mail, in rheumatism and catarrh:

"My experience with the excellent system of mail treatment practiced by Drs. Copeland and Shepard was this: Being myself a severe sufferer from catarrh and rheumatism, I just laid down one day, and a symptom blank or free printed question list. After receiving it I wrote out answers to the symptom questions and returned it. From those answers they diagnosed my case perfectly and began treatment, sending me medicines by mail. The treatment was thoughtful, skillful and effective and soon resulted in a cure. The expense was only a little fee for a medicine included."

WILENS OF CATARRH.

The Intolerable Finiteness Usually Characteristic of the Catarrh.

Sensitive persons with the natural instinct of cleanliness, care less for the badly suffering incident to chronic nasal catarrh than for its vile odors. It is a vile disease, young farmer of Homer, Dakota county, Neb., lately cured of the disease in its most offensive form by Dr. Shepard, speaks today. His case was treated entirely through the mails. He says:

C. L. Jacobson, Homer, Neb.

"I have been trying the Copeland & Shepard system of treatment for the catarrh, with results that have surprised me."

"During one of the terrific blizzards of a year ago I took a cold, with the result of having my nose closed solid, so that I could not breathe except through the mouth. The condition that soon followed was something horrible. It was like plugging the nostrils with a burning till they ran over and drowned the house with filth."

"My feeling of the violence of the disease was absolutely sickening. All the unpleasant nasal secretions were emptied backward into the throat, to drip like so much poison into the stomach, or to be discharged through the mouth. This steady drip and flow of thick, clotted, yellowish-green matter was so offensive that I could not escape its constant stink and smell. It was too much for me."

"Of course, after the trouble became chronic it diseased my whole system. It affected my lungs, my throat and looked like a consumptive. It wore out my stomach till I could seldom eat without wanting to vomit, and my bowels till I almost perished from chronic constipation and piles. It affected my nervous system and my memory so that I couldn't keep my mind on anything and was always making mistakes in my work."

"Before I began the treatment that resulted so happily I had become sunk to deep in misery, so completely worn out and undone, that I hardly cared whether I lived or died. However, that feeling soon passed away. I got better right away and went steadily on to complete cure. It is nearly a year since Dr. Shepard did me of my trouble, and today I am as sound and well as I ever was."
